

Where do I begin?

Planning your transfer is an important step to earn your degree. Students in Michigan have several options when it comes to transferring. You may want to:

- transfer a course
- complete the Michigan Transfer Agreement
- complete an entire associate degree before transferring to earn your bachelor's degree.

Use the resources on this site to help plan your transfer.

1 Explore Careers

Before you select a major, think about your career interests. Review career information online, conduct informational interviews, or job shadow professionals working in the field. Talk with your academic advising or career services office for additional information about career exploration including tools to help you explore.

2 Select Your Major

Once you explore career options, consider what majors might be a good fit with that career. What courses are required in that major? What colleges and universities offer that major?

3 Plan Your Transfer Pathway

Begin to plan your transfer pathway. What courses will you complete at the community college and what courses will you complete at the university? Use resources from the community college or university academic advising office to help plan all of the courses you will need to complete to graduate.

4 Consult an Advisor

Careful planning includes meeting with an advisor to get input on your career exploration and major selection and your transfer plan. Advisors from community colleges and universities are available to help. View our contact page for more information.

Undecided?

Choosing a major can be difficult. It is critical that you explore careers and majors to develop a transfer plan. Explore resources available our colleges and universities or speak with an academic advisor or career counselor at your college or university for help.
